Description:

This two story, three bay brick house probably dates from approximately 1890. The brick walls are laid in common bond with eight courses of stretchers between header rows. This pattern is typical of the late 19th century. There are also brick segmental arches above the window and door openings. Windows have two over two light sash. The main entrance is in the center bay of the front elevation. A hip roofed porch extends across the three front bays.

This house represents the generally later construction that occurred off Funkstown's main street which was developed in the 18th and early 19th centuries.
